Five Good Years Ahead

Eastern business men are looking for an enormous development of western trade during the next five years. While they have been evincing great interest in the present season's grain crop, they are not lemiting their view to the immediate fourer. They base their optimistic ideas of Manitoba and North-West trade expansion on the activity of various western lines of trade which will result from the speedy construction of the Grand Trunk Pacificarium and other railways in the Northwest during the next five years. The large grain crops, and the expansion in other lines of western in dustry, will all combine, it is thought, to double the purchases of the great west in the eastern Canadian market in a very few years. It is pointed out that durthe construction of the Canadian Pacific there were ten years of prosperity for Canada, and that the expenditure of money on railway construction alone was largely productive of better times. It is deduced that in the mext few years Manitoba will benefit more largely from similar constructive.
